

Raleway town background and atmosphere

Raleway is a small quaint little town on the rise stationed about 50 miles from the deepwater lake. pastures and farm land are sprawled to the north of the Eastern imperial train track and the town lies primarily to the south. Despite the towns previous status as a mining town and the closing of the mine no less than 10 years ago the people of raleway are thriving. Few can offer a good reason for the recent drastic uptick in business for virtually every business here. Some will say its the towns rolling hills and visitors come for the beauty alone, some tell you goods and services here are handled with love and care and their quality is what brings people, and most will simply talk about so called god that graced their town with wealth and prosperity. Everyone knows but very few will tell you the real reason that the town sees strange people with money falling out of their pockets and large caravans of merchants in search for fools to rip off. Underneath the imperial rails, lies a marketplace. A place selling all manners of rare and almost always illegal items. No one likes the mines new purpose but its hard to speak up when you are finally filling your mouth after years of starving and scraping by. The people of railway are not greedy and selfish, in fact their moral compass is particularly well tuned, they are just tired of not being able to care for the sick, not being able to feed their family, not being able to live with any amount of comfort.

Not everyone is comfortable with sitting idly by and letting their town become reliant on the black market and some people believe their town is on the brink of being swallowed by greed, A young woman by the name of Jessica believes that the vein wasn't lost. Rumors tell of a monster in the mines guarding precious metals and gemstones bigger than your hand. Most dismiss this as a fairy tale told by miners turned insane by the time they spent trapped in there but it's true. The mine was shut and the official report told of a tunnel collapse that left miners trapped for months. There was supposedly enough food for them to survive in there for years, but only two made it out, and neither of them seem to be capable of telling anyone what happened down there. The townspeople pieced together the story from a few whispered sentences. However, over time their stories began to diverge and eventually the source of their trauma didn't seem to add up. Jessica thinks that the monster exists and if she was somehow able to destroy it the mine could return to normal operations and raleway would be able to find prosperity by legal and honest methods. She has secretly been venturing into the mines where shs is hiding a frankly overzealous amount of explosives.

The election for sheriff will happen in a few days and Jess is running. Albert the old and grizzled current sheriff sees no real issue with the crime that has entered the city. He is happy taking the money that new and albeit shady visitors are offering if he can use it to build up raleway in the process. He finds it troubling that some of the aforementioned visitors have decided to stick around a while, but the monthly checks have yet to start bouncing and schools don't rebuild themselves nor do the sick don't get better without medicine. He has even managed to look past the mobs sigil, after all, who have they hurt here and after being pushed out of the capital city by the empire they hold way less power than they used to. They have only asked him to do one thing so far but even he cant justify how ugly and unkind it is. Everyone is aware that jess is running for sherif, and everyone knows that jess plans to stop the marketplace. All he was asked to do is plant a letter on her. One letter and he will continue being sherif. One letter and they will leave him alone. One letter and railway will continue to be prosperous and safe. Albert cant bring himself to do it but if the party is willing he thinks the benefits of her loss of the election outway the costs.

A cargo train carrying extremely expensive fabrics and textiles and other valuables to the capital and is scheduled to pass through raleway in a few days. The party as been contracted by roscoe the potato man (yes he is a collection of living potatoes (rouge lv20) ex president of the imperial assassins association) to help him in stealing the goods on the train. He has informed the group that they must plan this alone and report to him, he cannot openly converse with anyone, few people can understand/ get past the fact that he is potatoes. Party does not know this but once the goods are acquired roscoe will pay the party and burn anything taken from the train. He is on a mission to destroy the empire with everything they taught him. He will tell the group they can find him in the ocean to the northwest of the capital.

Things that can be used by party

- Mine entrances: General store, Apothecary, secret door in boarded up mine entrance
- Train schematics are found in the station workers office
- Carriage repair shop owner will give the party a covered horse drawn vehicle if they incriminate jessica because he makes all of his money repairing wagons in trading caravans

- In black market Apothecary they can buy an extremely potent sleeping potion that
 - can be used in trains ventilation system
- Mine shaft directly under rails
 - Explosives can be used to send train into the mine
- Artificer sells illegal spell components in market
 - Wizard research area deeper in mine
 - Has developed short range teleportation gates
 - a. Limited somehow
 - Can be used to get treasure out of train

Hard moves I can take on the train

- Livestock on the tracks
- They are seen
- Doors lock and gas starts pouring in
- Stored runes
- People man the canons
- People come through the vents

Locations and general info

- Train
 - Centralized ventilation
 - Coal powered
 - Holds expensive things
 - To many people to fight
- Raleway
 - Station (bills office)
 - a. Has train schematics on wall
 - b. Tools in desk upon inspection, He must not be in the office
 - Inn
 - a. Gnome with a limp and a massive set of keys
 - Does not appreciate strange and untrustworthy people in railway sides with jessica
 - b. Bar and common space
 - Ancient man sits by the fire wrapped in blanket muttering to himself
 - Won't talk beyond a few words: eyes, so dark, so cold, never going back
 - General store: the general store is quaint as hell
 - a. Roberta a blue skinned tiefling
 - b. As you enter you hear the sound of rattling metal stop and she enters from the back
 - c. A blue tiefling emerges from the back
 - Apothecary
 - a. Shop description
 - b. Fredric wants to keep the mine runnin
 - c. Has fun hat with spices on it
 - d. Speaks like garfield the deals warlock
 - Smith
 - a. Shop description: A hot tub sized pit of smoldering embers lies in the center of a dark room, Unnecessary chains and gears hide walls damaged by years of smoke and burns.
 - Vehicle repair : Wibur's bitchin whips
 - a. Shop description: wheels of all sizes and purposes cover the back wall
 - b. Wilber wants to keep the mine running
 - c. Directs you to albert
 - Sheriff's office
 - a. Albert

- b. Contains letter meant to incriminate
 - School
 - a. Run by Jessica and her family
 - Clothes
 - a. Mob works out of this shop
 - b. When Vinnie enters this shop or is alone she is taken away by the man running the shop
 - He asks her what she is doing being so obvious
 - Tells her that he won't tell her father if she doesn't let it slip that he is beyond the borders of operation
- Mine: the central entrance to the mine is through an old decaying building across the tracks. Creaky wooden steps lead to a door with carefully lined boards blocking entry into the mine shaft. As you walk down the stairs you think that those seem so focused that she doesn't notice the party. She walks down the mine and takes the steps that proceed into the depths of the mine
 - Layout long Tunnels show evidence of strip mining and surface digging.
 - a. Small cave in supported by thick iron beams to prevent the weight of trains collapsing the tunnel
 - Minner office: the office has clearly seen better days, Its wood is rotting, and dust and dirt from years and years of neglect have settled virtually everywhere but a map and a journal.
 - a. A enormous schematic of the mine is pinned to the wall detailing where the mines caveins, spots of found gems, spots where gems weren't found/ dead ends
 - b. A Journal Sits atop the desk opened to the last page
 - DC investigation 15 shows that 1 other page has been bookmarked
 - Entry 1: Today was almost a disaster, A cave in almost killed three miners and set us back significantly, It's that damn imperial railroad. We put some beams up to hold the weight of the trains, It should work but we'll be keeping an eye on those for a while. I'm afraid that if those broke the shaft would almost certainly collapse under the weight of another train. The tracks could even fall into the mine. I hate digging this close to the surface but as strange as it is that seems to be where the gems are.
 - Entry 2: Its been months since our last find not a single gem can be found and at this point im close to throwing in the towel. Though I don't know that raleway could not support itself without the mine, let alone me and the people that work here. I don't want to dig deeper, Something about the air just doesn't feel right the deeper you go into the mine. We've been blessed by surface level wealth but for the sake of our hungry bellies we might have to push past our dread. I'm gonna try a few more things before I give up but if we go down and don't find something soon the end of all this may be in sight.
 - Last page: I think we've finally found it, we've been searching for months and we've finally found something. Im gonna tell everyone to keep tight lips about it though. I cant handle giving the people something to hope for and snatching it away a few days later. Tomorrow I'm taking everyone down into the depths and doing what I can to save this town.
 - Market
 - a. Finding the market
 - DC perception 10 reveals the ground is very recently traveled and 100s of footsteps can be seen, far more than you would imagine live in this town.
 - DC perception 15 shows a series of half circle creases along the walls of the mine shaft.
 - DC Investigation 15 reveals a button on the wall.
 - Button causes wall to revolve realling a kiosk set up with all varieties of potions and glassware and dried ingredients under locked glass
