

Adventure 2

The lair they have just found their way into is that of a sentient gorilla, korlear, it has grown and mutated under the magic of a great tree. This tree as a sapling, its mother, the source of the forest magic, lies far to the east. This ape has gathered a clan and they established themselves as the controllers of the local fief.

Mage superior, in the hopes of guarding the secret to her agents, has used familiars to drop all the extracted trackers into the lair. To bolster security and prevent lethal action from apes she has installed a few traps and magical wards to prevent the fort guards from getting too close to korlear.

Korlear however, now rather intelligent, has full understanding that he is being used and is looking for compensation by the agents of whomever is sending these trackers, he fully knows that the people sent by the fort have very little authority or connections so he has been waiting for someone of a higher status to arrive. Because of this he has captured all the soldiers that managed to survive their capture, Korlear intends to use these as guards as bargaining chips.
